THE FANTASTIC GAY NINETIES--A MILLERSBURG MASTERPIECE

The "Gay Nineties", whether it be the tumbler featured here, or the fabulous water pitcher, it is certainly a prized possession and definitely could be classed as a "Super Star" in any carnival glass collection. I am quite sure that any tumbler collector would rate it as least in the top ten of their carnival glass tumbler list. About four years ago William (Pete) Wallace rated it as number eight in his top 25 list. (List was printed in H.O.A.C.G.A. news letter). Mr. Owens in his fine tumbler book rates it in the top group of ten. Personally, I would rate it as number five, just below the Frolicking Bears, Butterfly, Multi Fruit & Flowers, and Morning Glory tumblers. Really you could change these five tumblers around in any way and still would have a respectable rating. Five different people would probably rate them in five different placings. Some collectors might even suggest replacing several of these with such tumblers as Inverted Feather, Fentonia Fruit, Wisteria or Hobnail. All of these are rare and very desirable.

It is interesting to note that in a listing of the top thirty five tumblers by Leslie C. Wolfe back in 1966, that tumblers such as Gay Nineties, Morning Glory and Multi Fruit and Flowers were not even mentioned in his top thirty five list of rare and prized tumblers. No doubt at that time Mr. Wolfe had not seen or heard of these fantastic and rare Millersburg tumblers. At that time the "God and Home" tumbler was rated as number two on his list. In todays rating this tumbler would be placed much farther down the list. Even though "God and Home" is a very beautiful and desirable tumbler, comparatively speaking it is much easier to find today. I am certainly not trying to degrade the "God and Home" tumbler as it is a gorgeous piece of carnival glass and is highly prized as being both religious and patriotic. It also could be classed in the souvenir category. I am merely showing here the difference in the rating of tumblers back in 1966 as compared to how they would be rated in 1978. The "God and Home" pitcher however, is rated much higher by pitcher collectors than by tumbler collectors. This is because the pitcher is much harder to find. More about this fine tumbler in a later issue of this series.

This old list of carnival glass tumblers by Leslie C. Wolfe, can be found in a 1966 issue of Joe Olson's S.C.G.C. newsletter. Mr. Wolfe at that time was one of the top tumbler collectors in the nation. He was President of the "Society of Carnival Glass Collectors" at one time and later President of the "International Carnival Glass Association". Mr. Wolfe's knowledge on carnival glass was regarded highly at that time.

The "Gay Nineties" water pitcher is of the bulbous type, quite similiar to Northwood's "Wishbone" water pitcher in shape. The pitcher, like the tumbler has excellent workmanship and is extremely rare. Only three pitchers are known in amethyst, one in green and as yet no marigold "Gay Neneties" pitcher has been found. In the ratings of four well known authorities on carnival glass water pitchers, the "Gay Nineties" was rated first on two lists, third on one and fourth on another. These ratings are reported here to show that this pattern is very desirable, beautiful and extremely rare. Likewise it is very valuable. The green water pitcher recently sold at auction for $7,500.

"GAY NENETIES TUMBLERS"

The "Gay Nineties" tumblers shown here are in amethyst and marigold. No green tumbler has been reported, even though as mentioned above, a green water pitcher is known to exist. There are probably around 20 to 25 known amethyst tumblers and only three that are actually known to exist in marigold. From these statistics you can see that this is a very rare tumbler. At the Bob Marcum auction held in Columbia, Missouri on August 18-19, 1978, a "Gay Nineties" tumbler in marigold sold for eight hundred and fifty dollars. Mr. Marcum told me he was very disappointed in what the tumbler brought, as he had been offered one thousand dollars plus a six hundred dollar tumbler for his marigold "Gay Nineties", in which he had turned down.

The tumbler is of standard size but slightly shorter than such Northwood tumblers as "Greek Key" and "Oriental Poppy". The glass is of the fine radium finish you see on many other pieces of Millersburg carnival glass. The tumbler is lighter in weight than most Imperial or Northwood tumblers. It has 30 pointed spear heads in a star shape pressed into the bottom of the base. The name "Gay Nineties" is a very appropriate one for this pretty pattern, as it reminds one of the lovely ruffled and cascading dresses worn by the ladies of the 1890's.

Whether John Fenton or some other artist employed by the Millersburg Glass Company designed this pattern, I do not know. But whoever did dream up this super deluxe "Gay Nineties" water set, and also the "Morning Glory, Perfection and Multi Fruits and Flowers" Millersburg patterns must have been a genius and extremely artistic.

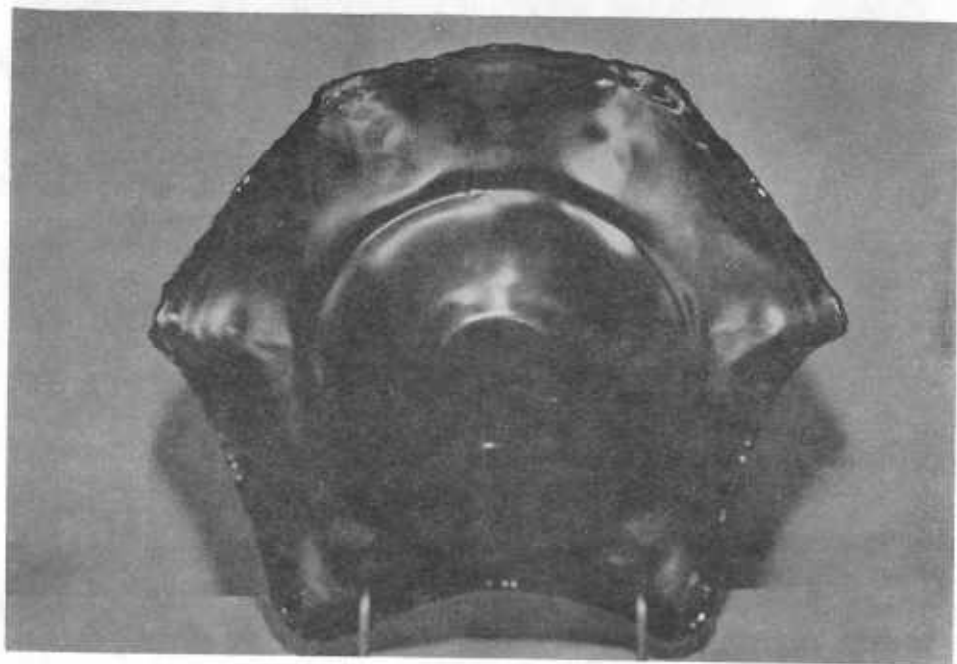

In closing, if you have this beautiful tumbler in your collection, you are indeed fortunate. If not, I wish you the best of luck in finding one sometime. Keep looking--it is even possible that a green one might show up sometime in your area.

This is number 10 of a series on carnival glass tumblers. Next month we will discuss an unusual and very rare pattern made by the Westmorland Glass Company, that is known as "Checkerboard".

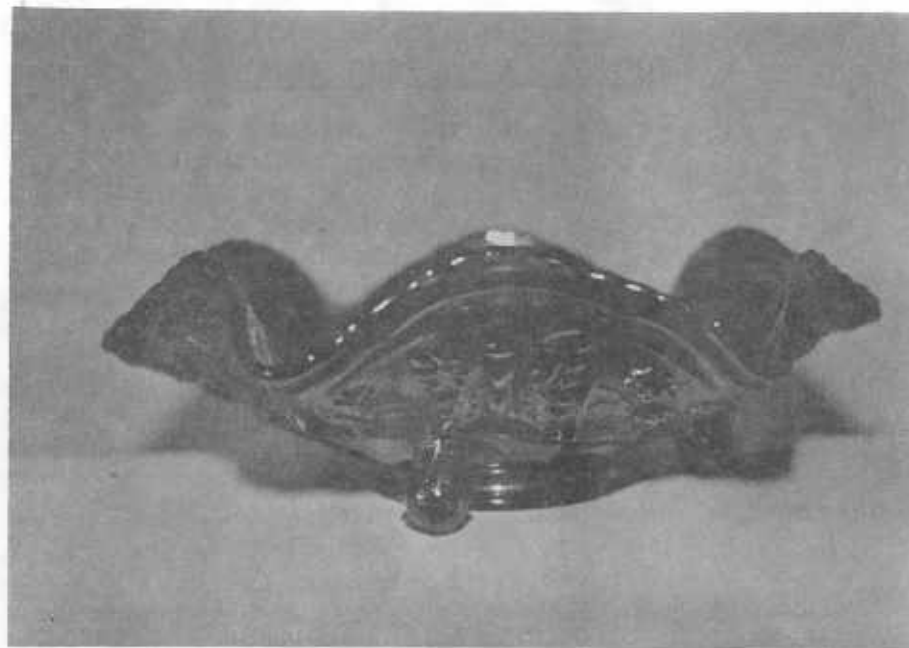

John & Lucile Britt

PICTORIAL PATTERN PARADE

Here we are showing three different views of an unusual piece of the "Butterfly and Berry" pattern. First, it is unusual in that it has no pattern at all on the inside of the bowl.

This piece is generally considered a whimsey, made from the master berry bowl, and is usually called a "Centerpiece" bowl. It is a little hard to tell from the picture, but the three feet do not touch the table when setting in a upright position. The feet are approximately  $1/4$  inch off the table and the bowl actually sets on the base of the bowl. You can whirl the bowl around and the feet never touch the table. This is quite unusual.

It is also unusual in that this piece is in the green color. I have not encountered this particular centerpiece bowl in that color. I have seen a number of master berry bowls in green, however.

This pattern is widely known and was made by the Fenton Art Glass Company of Williamstown, West Virginia. This particular piece was found by Robert Butler of Alton, Illinois. He is an active member of the H.O.A.C.G.A. Mike & Gwen Bevill of Jacksonville, Florida specialize in this pattern, as does Roland Kuhn and Donald Kime of Topeka, Kansas. All four of these fine young collectors have written articles for our H.O.A.C.G.A. newsletter and are very active in carnival glass collecting. Notes and pictures by John & Lucile Britt.

Carnival Cameos by Don Moore

GOBLETS AND WINES - It is surprising they made so few goblets and wine sets in Carnival glass. Whereas they made a hundred or more water pitchers and tumblers in different patterns and different colors, I can think of less than a half dozen wine sets and not many more goblets. Shown here is the goblet and wine glass in a pattern called Sailboats. These were made by the Fenton Art Glass Company and can be found in marigold and blue. The goblet is quite rare and will sell for $75 in marigold and for still more in blue. The wines are more readily found but are far from plentiful. In marigold, one will bring around $20. It is interesting that no wine decanter has ever been found to go with these wine glasses.
