VERY IMPORTANT NOTICE

Please make note that due to prior commitments, auctions, etc. the H.O.A.C.G.A Meeting in Des Moines, Iowa on November 9 and 10, 1990 HAS BEEN CANCELLED.

The regular H.O.A.C.G.A. monthly meeting will be held on November 25, 1990 at 2:00 P.M. at the Raytown City Hall. As this will be the last meeting for this year, lets all bring some of our favorite Carnival Glass to the meeting for a Show & Tell.

Make plans to attend the last meeting for 1990!

I would like to thank our many Carnival friends who took the time to call, send sympathy cards, gifts, or flowers, since the passing of my wife, Shirley, on September 21, 1990.

She had met so many caring and wonderful people. On behalf of my family, may I express our deepest gratitude to all. She will be sorely missed.

New Cumberland, Pa.

Carnival Glass collectors lost a very good friend and fellow collector. Bob Vining of Chatsworth, Georgia passed away on October 16, 1990. Bob, along with his lovely wife Kitty, have been active members in several Carnival Glass organizations for many years. Bob was one of the Carnival Pioneers and helped guide the I.C.G.A. for several years as its President. Bob was always there lending his help in anyway he could.

Bob and Kitty attended all of the H.O.A.C.G.A. Conventions except one, since its first one in 1973. Bob's cheerful smile and willingness to help all collectors will be missed very much.

Condolences may be sent to Kitty, Post Office Box 6, Chatsworth, Georgia 30705.

BOB GRISSOM,
President,
H.O.A.C.G.A.

We would like to express our deepest condolences to the family of Shirley Sheibley, who passed away on September 21, 1990. Our thoughts and prayers go out to her husband Ted and their eight children.

Condolences may be sent to Ted, 304A Hillcrest Drive, New Cumberland, Pa. 17070.

THE FLORAL ACCENT CUP AND SAUCER

THE FLORAL ACCENT CUP & SAUCER SHOWING INTERIOR OF SAUCER

THE FLORAL ACCENT CUP AND SAUCER

This little marigold cup and saucer is a cute little piece of Carnival Glass and due to its small size, we are calling it a demitasse cup and saucer. Demitasse is a small cup that is used for after dinner black coffee. We have seen many of these small demitasse cups and saucers, usually made of china such as R. S. Germany or R. S. Prussia. While this Carnival Glass example is a little smaller than the popular "Kittens" cup and saucer, we are quite sure that this one is not a part of a child's set.

The saucer is 3 3/4 inches wide and is slightly over 3/4 of an inch high. The cup is 2 1/8 inches high with a top opening of 2 3/8 inches. The base is 1 1/2 inches in diameter. The floral design is attractive and the hand painting is very well done. The flowers used in the decorating appears to be that of the Babys Breath.

We have seen only two of these little Floral Accent cup and saucers. The first one was sold at the I.C.G.A. Convention auction at La Crosse, Wisconsin. It was purchased by an ardent miniature collector for $145.00. We purchased our set at the Canadian auction several years ago and it fits in very well in our miniature collection.

We suspect that these were made in Czechoslovakia or some other country in that area, but of course that is only a guess on our part. This tiny set would make a nice addition to any Carnival Glass collection, but should be especially interesting to the miniature collectors.

This article on the little miniature Floral Accent demitasse cup and saucer is #142 in our Pictorial Pattern Parade series. We hope that you have found it interesting.

NORTHWOOD PEACOCK AT THE FOUNTAIN TUMBLERS

Peacock at the Fountain was certainly one of Northwood's most popular patterns. It was probably exceeded only by their famous Grape & Cable. It is an impressive well-done pattern with an intriguing design. The pattern was made in many different pieces including the water set, table set, berry set, punch set, compote and a large footed orange bowl. Peacock at the Fountain pieces are also found in a wide range of colors including the pastels. The fruit bowl, compote and punch sets are known to exist in aqua opalescent, even though they are extremely rare in that color. Unfortunately for the tumbler collector, no tumbler or water pitcher has ever been reported in aqua opalescent.

The Peacock at the Fountain tumblers are graceful, beautiful and easily found, especially in purple, cobalt blue and marigold. Green, white and ice blue tumblers are much more difficult to obtain. The electric blue example is fantastic and that color is in big demand by collectors today. We have never seen a Peacock at the Fountain tumbler in ice green. A number of unusual colored tumblers have been reported however, including smoke, lavender and amber. We once purchased 5 tumblers in this pattern, all at one place, that actually had an amberish with amethyst tint base color, but the iridescence had a super reddish amber glow. In other words, when setting on the table, they appeared to be a shade of red. More people commented on those tumblers for beauty than any tumblers that we ever owned.

PEACOCK AT THE FOUNTAIN VARIENT BY DUGAN

The Peacock at the Fountain tumblers and water pitchers were also made by the Dugan Glass Company. Richard Owens, author of the book "Carnival Glass Tumblers", calls this one "Peacock at the Fountain, Varient". Some collectors refer to it as "Dugan's Peacock at the Fountain". It was no doubt a copy of the Northwood version. It is noticeably different. It is shown in the above photo in the very rare amber color. The big majority of these Dugan Peacock tumblers were made in cobalt blue.

Here is how to tell the difference between these two tumblers. First of all, most Northwood Peacock tumblers are signed, but not all, so you can't take for granted that all unsigned tumblers are Dugan. Secondly, the Dugan examples look and are a little smaller. They look squarish in shape and are narrower at both the top and bottom. The Northwood version tends to flare out slightly towards the top. The overall design on the Dugan tumbler is not raised in relief nearly as much as those made by Northwood. Differences appear in the Peacock wing, tail feathers and headdress. Major differences are found in the tree design and fountain area. These features are much more pronounced on the Northwood examples. We have noticed that with the Dugan tumbler, where the three top knots extend up above the head of the peacock, that the figures at the top look much like tulip blossoms. These same three figures are just ovals that resemble small plums on all the Northwood Peacock tumblers that we have seen. Another point of difference and quite interesting, is that the top row of beading of the fountain on the Dugan tumblers have six beads while the Northwood tumblers have eight of the beads on the top row. Both companies used twenty four background panels, but they are much more pronounced on the Northwood examples. These differences should help even the beginning collector to tell the difference between these two variations.

In my study of the Peacock at the Fountain tumblers, we have discovered another variant tumbler which is somewhat different from the above two examples. This one is not signed, but does contain a large circle in the inside bottom of the base. We believe this to be a plunger mark. Instead of the 24 panels used on the first two tumblers, this one has 21 panels in the background. Also, instead of the six and eight beads found on the top row of the fountain, which were used on the previous described tumblers, this variant has seven beads. We have seen a number of these tumblers around, but in much less quantity than the former two examples.

This is #154 in our Educational Tumbler Series. Next month we will feature the Satin Jewels tumbler. This pattern was named by Richard Owens and is shown and described in his very fine tumbler book.

Yvan Beaudry's Notebook Up-Dates in the October issue finally "got me up off my duff" to compile the preceeding Notebook information. Thanks, Yvan, for the inspiration. I'm still working on up-date information for the remaining sections. I'm sure there is probably a good deal more additional material out there in our Club members Notebooks, so; come on folks. Let's share our notes and get the Notebook up to date.

CARL O. BURNS
Andover, Maine

Members listening to one of the Educational

Seminars at the 1990 Convention.

Most glass auctions I have attended here in the Midwest start out by welcoming the participants and usually follow by an announcement that write-in bids will be entered as if you were present and bidding. The advance sale flyers have similar statements that would have you believe that you are a welcome and equal bidder in the sale. But it's all down hill from there.

Throughout the day remarks are woven into the sale degrading the lowly write-in bidder. The people attending the sale are reminded repeatedly that they are the chosen ones. Why? Because of the great expense and effort on their part to attend the sale. That's baloney. They are there for many reasons: because they enjoy the thrill of the sale, they want to see what they are buying, visit with their many friends, some are bargain hunters. Does anyone think mail bidders are somehow different? We would all like to attend each auction for all the same reasons. But for various reasons such as work, distance, health or just can't afford to, we cannot attend all auctions.

Millions of dollars are spent each year in coin auctions by mail bidders. Why? Because it is a perfectly respectable way to add to ones collection. Any typically coin auctions state that "a floor bidder must bid higher than the highest mail bid to be awarded any lot." Why should glass collectors be treated any differently? The floor bidders have all the advantages of seeing what they are buying. We have all seen glass go to a lower bid from the floor because the auctioneer finds it's easier than mailing it. On the other hand he has no trouble at all with the mail bids that are so high that he can't even get a bid from the floor.

The Mil bidders benefit to the seller and the auctioneer should be obvious. Instead of a room of say 100 maybe bidders (as some are just lookers and listeners), the seller's glass is now offered to several hundred serious collectors all over the world. The buyer is notified by collect call and pays for shipping, so what is the problem? Why does this attitude exist? Come on guys, give us a break. We love your auctions and love our glass collecting hobby, but please, when you look down on us from the auction platform and cry about the pesky mail bidder, please realize you are talking to the guy who might have wanted to bid by mail in your next sale, BUT YOU TALKED HIM OUT OF IT.

TAMPA BAY CARNIVAL GLASS CLUB NEWS

As a result of the membership vote, we will dispense with July and August meetings in the future. It seems most members are pre-occupied with I.C.G.A. or A.C.G.A. Conventions, or just going north to beat the heat. I think this will not really cause any problems in the administration of the Club. A review of the events of last summer did not show any unsurmountable problems arising! Besides, the summer meetings were a rather recent undertaking.

I regret to report that Naomi Calkins has seen it necessary to resign as Chairperson of the Jamboree for personal reasons. I do want the membership to recognize and appreciate the willingness and promptness which our co-chair-lady, Barbara Hobbs, displayed when she stepped forward to take over. Thanks to you, Barb, for taking charge! I'm sure you will find help when and where you need it.

Irene Carbone has volunteered to host our next meeting on October 28th.... the 4th Sunday of the month this time. We appreciate your offer Irene, and all look forward to getting back into the normal meeting routine. Please coordinate covered dishes with Irene. I guess she can be reached starting on, or about, the 22nd of October. Rumor has it that she is enjoying a cruise! (Happy Sailing!) We will also have a sales table and plan to conduct a White Elephant Auction; so, please bring your donations.

Welcome to our new members, Pearl and Melvin Luxenberg of Safety Harbor and their guests who attended our last meeting. Hope you will enjoy our future meetings, and I am sorry that I missed you in September. Hope to see a good turnout for our October meeting.
