MORE ON LAMP SHADES

By Alan & Lorraine Pickup

We will just take a cursory look at a couple of carnival glass shades this time. We hope that there are other collectors out there that have some interest in lamp shades. If not, someone please let us know.

We find carnival shades an interesting facet of the carnival glass period. Can you picture all those “turn of the century” homes so softly lighted using marigold lamp shades. Now picture the green shades being used. Electric lighting was just coming into its own. Gas lights with carnival shades were still in use. It's not our idea of very effective lighting. We had marigold shades in our bathroom light fixture for a while and it certainly was hard to see.

The square Northwood Pillar and Drape shades have a satin finish with a rich marigold iridescence over Northwood's Luna glass, called moonstone today. Luna glass was described as an alabaster-like, opaque white glass. “Venetian” was the pattern name Northwood used for these shades and the marigold finish was called “luster”. These shades were also made by Northwood in white and called iridized Luna or “Pearl” finish. These two are iridized inside and out with only the fitter area showing the moonstone base glass. Some show a little moonstone on the edges. They are not peach opal as reported by some writers. They stand a little over five inches tall and are signed Northwood in block letters near the fitter. We have seen this shade in a white pearlized finish but did not examine it closely to see if it was signed. Fenton Art Glass made similar shades in marigold and white and are shown in a 1914 ad pictured in the “Fenton Glass the 1st 25 years” book. Also, the white shade we saw appeared to be somewhat taller.

The other picture shows two shades from Imperial's Nu Art line. The pattern is usually referred to as Imperial's Daisy. See Marion Hartung's book #7 on page 55. Not to be confused with another shade called Daisy Chain on page 45 of the same book. Helen Greguire's “Carnival in Lights” book makes mention of this shade in the gas light size. These two shades are both the electric size. The smaller shade is a deep marigold whereas the larger five inch shade is a very pretty pastel and has very colorful iridescence. Both shades are signed NU ART and are smoothed or ground inside the fitter area. The shades have a stippled background. Helen's book alludes to “mold frosted, not hand frosted”?? Marion Hartung's book number seven mentions the smaller four and one half inch “shade in a rich shade of amber-marigold, almost a honey amber.” These books are still available from HOACGA and are still a good source of information.

Carnival lamp shades add a semblance of warmth to our home and we will leave the lights on in the window for you. Just don't try to read by them.

INSERT NAME HERE

By Margaret & John McGrath

Included on the photo are 4 different patterns of quite individual and interesting form from unidentified sources but most likely Czechoslovakia, Poland, Finland or Sweden.

We mention Poland as we have seen a part set of small bowls with a frosted pattern of Golden Cupids & a worn "Made in Poland" sticker attached.

It would be great if we could unearth the country of origin & identify the maker, which would in turn boost our framework of knowledge & tell us for certain just how & where these beautiful pieces were created.

The patterns are intaglio i.e. cut in from under the base & then iridized in the whole of the pattern only.

The brilliance of the mirror like iridescence reflects right through to the edge & other pattern lines on each piece as well.

The finish & iridization of the piece photographed is of excellent quality & the fine detail & design is indeed superb.

These patterns have not been attributed to definite makers at this time so we have to say maker unknown.

While we wish this did not have to be we feel that sooner or later these featured pieces too will find their proper place in the history of Carnival glass.

Please note - the pattern names and descriptions are what we have applied.

Twin Golden Thistles pattern oval tray, which measures 26.5 (10½") cm long x 15.5 (6") cm wide.

Golden Pineapple & Blackberries pattern plate. This plate is perfectly flat and measures 25.5 (10") cm across. (Note - how the marigold is reflected on the inner circle, collar base and around the perimeter of the plate.)

Golden Pineapple & Blackberries pattern bowl. This piece is the same as the plate above & has been moulded to bowl shape & again the reflection of the marigold iridescence is very striking.

Golden Thistles pattern pin tray (5 sided). This attractive little tray shows 5 sides with the top rim forming a scallop pattern. Each side having a deeply cut star & single 8 petal flower, each in a cut diamond surrounding the outside of the tray. Size is 11 (4½") cm across x 2.5 (1") cm high.

ITEM NO. 5:

Golden Pansies, Dresser Tray. This tray sits perfectly flat, it is 25 (10") cm long, 14 (5½") cm wide and has a 1¼ (½") cm thick border surround. The photo shows the cut detail in the mould work which is really magnificent.

We are certain other patterns may yet be discovered & if any of you have seen or own another of these pieces or even similar to those mentioned it would be interesting to hear from you.

Please write a note & if possible let us have a photo. Best wishes & happy hunting.

THE OTHER END OF THE CARNIVAL SPECTRUM

By Gerald Thomas

Many of us work diligently on building Carnival collections of considerable size and value. Our efforts often entail attending numerous auctions and conventions each year and being frugal in order to make those "must have" glass purchases. As time passes, I envision the cost of Carnival rarities and premium quality glassware becoming too expensive for some collector's budgets. For those wishing to minimize their Carnival glass expenditures, I believe there are alternatives and good values in lower priced Carnival. This is what this article is all about, taking a second look at the other end of the Carnival glass spectrum.

We all have a pretty good idea as to what constitutes the "high end" of the Carnival glass spectrum, the rarities, the pastels, the whimsies and those Carnival patterns where strong collector demand always seems to exist. I thought it would be interesting to step back and take a second look as to just what type of glassware constitutes the lower end of the Carnival glass spectrum. My focus here is not on the light marigold Carnival glass of the Great Depression era. Rather, I wanted to focus on several glass pieces which frequently possess quality mold work, iridescence and color. The best part of the story is that these pieces are beautiful, easy to find (with a little effort) and are AFFORDABLE. Below are several Carnival glass items priced below $250 where I feel good value exists.

Pansy by Imperial Glass - pickle dishes and plates. A nice assortment of colors. Many pieces have the radium finish.

Orange Tree by Fenton - marigold pieces of all sizes and shapes. Some marigold Orange Tree pieces have vaseline incorporated into the base glass color. A nice pattern when iridescence is properly applied.

Cosmos bowls by Millersburg - usually found in 6" diameter green radium bowls. This is one of the few pieces of Millersburg Carnival which can be purchased for under $100.00.

Leaf Rays nappies by Dugan - a wide assortment of one handled nappies. The peach opalescent and purple nappies are attractive. Many purple nappies have exceptional iridescence.

Assorted pastel Swan Salts by Dugan and Fenton - open salt swans offer collectors the opportunity to buy rare pastel and opalescent Carnival without having to resort to big cash outlays. This is especially true when a comparison is made to more expensive glassware pieces such as plates and bowls.

From the examples provided above, it is evident that many nice carnival items can be purchased without destroying your household budget. I strongly suggest collectors take another look at "The Other End of the Carnival Spectrum". There are some exceptional glassware pieces out there with a very bright future. Happy Glass Hunting!!

2ND NOTEBOOK SECTION ---- VASES

PHOTOGRAPHS NEEDED

The first Vase section of the HOACGA Notebook has been completed, with the help of many of the members. The first section has been received very well. Many members have ordered the section for their notebook. Now it is time to start assembling the necessary photographs for the 2nd Vase section of the Notebook. The first section was those whose pattern names started with A thru C. For this section it is planned to add those vases whose pattern name starts with D thru G (Daisy Drape thru Graceful). I presently have several of the pictures, but there are many of the patterns for which I need a photograph. A list of these patterns are listed below. If you have one of these vases, or any unlisted vase, and would be willing to photograph it and send me a picture, I will appreciate it very much.

ON THE AUCTION TRAIL WITH CHUCK

By Chuck Kremer

September 21, 1996: Seek Auctions sold a portion of the Tarkington collection at Wentzville, Missouri. When I drove up to the motel I knew there was something special there. On the sidewalk, on a towel, was a plate and two men were on their knees photographing it. A rare piece and special - you bet! It was a blue Indiana Statehouse plate that had surfaced in Ohio - what a find. Apparently this is only the second one of these blue plates known and it was for sale in one of the rooms. A lovely green Trout and Fly plate was for sale in another room at the motel. This also is a very rare piece. I did too much visiting and didn't get to all the rooms with glass for sale, but those I did see had some good glass.

I went to the auction hoping to add one piece to my collection, but decided it didn't fit in too well so I didn't even bid on it. The $3500 amethyst nine inch Thistle plate was one of the top sellers and the $2200 marigold Diamond Points basket was one of the prettiest pieces sold. Disappointments - yes, they found cracks in both the very attractive Blackberry Block tankards. The auction in general was a good one from all angles in my opinion - well conducted, good glass, generally good prices, and the glass went to many different bidders.

A RETORT TO TWO CARNIVAL MARKETS

By Alan Pickup

Gerald Thomas' most recent article and his previous article in the April issue of HOACGA advocating the segregation of carnival glass and the people who enjoy collecting it, into two separate classes should be a wake up call to all collectors. He suggests that carnival glass should be sorted into the two following classes: the "cream of the crop" glass for the "serious collectors", the really sophisticated buyers, and the "run of the mill" glass for the second group of buyers, the unsophisticated. This is certainly not my idea of promoting the carnival glass hobby or for that matter any collecting hobby. First, let me state that I consider anyone who sits through an auction with 300 or 400 pieces of glass changing hands is most likely a serious collector. Whether he is named "Mr. Megabucks or Mr. and Mrs. Frugal", we all play a meaningful part in this hobby.

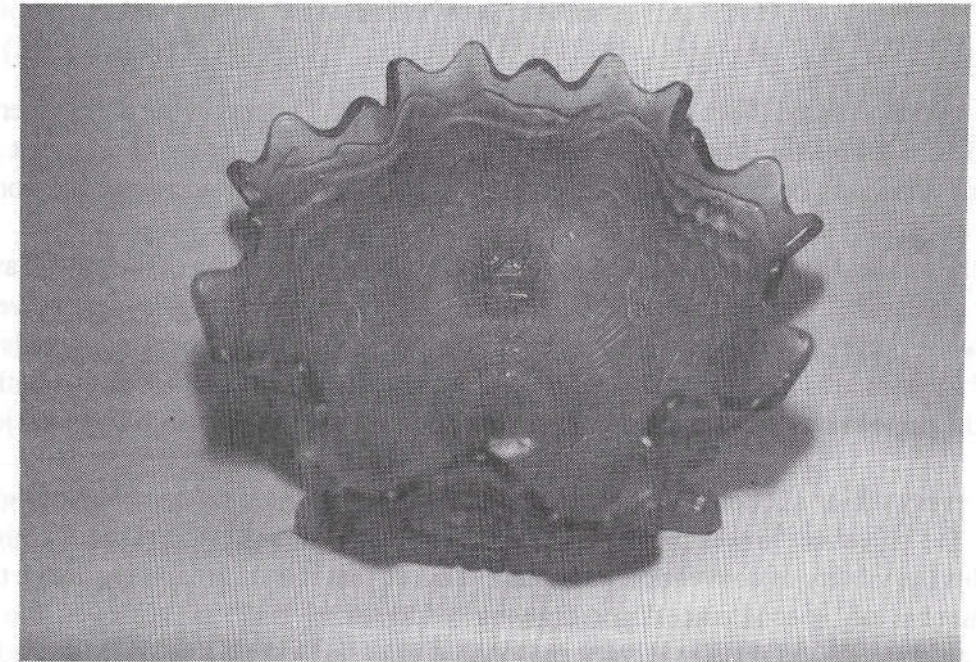

Without new collectors, who can find pleasure in owning affordable glass to whet their appetite for more, where do you think this hobby will go? Mr. Thomas refers to Bob Grissom's recent comments on the facts that carnival collectors, both the experienced and newcomers, are better informed today than when the hobby started. And who would disagree that better quality glass does appreciate in value faster than lower end glass.

As I read Bob's comments, he is advocating the continued encouragement of new collectors to uphold the hobby. And he points out that with so many auctions today, new collector interest is the key to continued growth in our hobby. I fail to see anything in Bob's remarks that encourages or promotes separation of collectors into two classes.

I feel Mr. Thomas is missing the point of glass conventions if he can only visualize an enjoyable convention by how great the auction glass was. Certainly it's important to have a good mixture of glass, but let's enjoy each other, too. Yes, the glass is our common interest but conventions are family gatherings, our carnival glass family. So let's all enjoy collecting and sharing our finds and stories with one another and forget this "Two Carnival Market" concept. I think it will undermine the hobby, not promote it. What do you think?

PICTORIAL PATTERN PARADE

RARE FENTON GRAPE & CABLE FRUIT BOWL - IN ICE GREEN

This beautiful and very rare fruit or orange bowl is in the ice green color. This unusual color for this piece is what makes it so rare. Of course, being a Fenton example also contributes to its rarity. Fenton did not make nearly as much carnival glass in the ice green color as did Northwood. This one is definitely Fenton. It contains the Persian medallion interior pattern to prove that it was made by that company.

Tom Mordini carried this bowl in to me at one of the Cooper auctions at Flint, Michigan a number of years ago. When I saw that it had the Persian Medallion interior, it was hard for me to believe it. But there it was and it was the real thing. It was the first Fenton ice green one that I had ever seen and owning it was a great thrill. During the years of our collecting we have owned a few dark green examples of this piece and I always thought that they were rather hard to find. But an ice green one was almost unbelievable to us. These fruit or orange bowls are most often seen in marigold and blue.

We are showing the featured ice green bowl in two different positions. Hopefully you will be able to detect the Persian Medallion interior. We are not sure how many of these ice green beauties does exist, but this one is still the only one that we have ever seen. If any of you do own one in ice green we would be pleased to hear from you. After enjoying this piece for some time, we decided that we would part with it. It is now a part of the Don and Becky Hamlet collection of Asheboro, North Carolina. We hope that they have enjoyed it as much as we did.

This is our 215th entry into the Pictorial Pattern Parade. Next month we will feature the rare Cosmos and Cane whimsey rose bowl.

A DIFFERENT OPINION

By Ken Oppenlander

The article entitled "Two Carnival Markets" by Gerald Thomas in the September issue of the HOACGA bulletin causes me great concern. I feel that he presents an elitist point of view and shows no compassion for the beginning, casual or lesser income collectors.

In the article, Mr. Thomas describes certain Carnival glass as "run of the mill", "average", "lower glassware" and other degrading terms. It is my opinion that this glass serves a very worthwhile purpose within our great hobby. It is the vehicle that allows individuals to enter our hobby without spending vast amounts of money. It also allows those of us with limited funds the opportunity to enjoy and collect without putting ourselves into financial jeopardy.

At every major auction that I have attended, there has been no shortage of individuals buying the so called "lower glassware". Mr. Thomas states that "average Carnival glass degrades the vitality of convention auctions". I agree that it is of great importance to have a large number of "special places" for drawing bidders at an auction, however, the average pieces always sell and usually at very reasonable prices. Doesn't this show a need for this class of Carnival glass?

If you separate auctions, collections and collectors by "lower" and "upper" class, you will lose many enthusiastic and valuable club members. One of the factors that has always impressed us is the warmth and friendliness of carnival glass people. They have treated us graciously and made us feel welcome regardless of the "class" of Carnival glass that we were buying and collecting. It has been the most successful members with the greatest collections that has treated us with the greatest kindness. I hope this does not change.

I am very concerned about the possible effect of Mr. Thomas article on our many new members who read the bulletin. If I had read this article as a new member, I might have felt that I would not be welcome unless I was buying the rarest and most expensive glass. I constantly hear the statement that "we need more members and collectors in our associations". We need to welcome collectors of all brackets of Carnival glass. They will grow in enthusiasm with time, and meanwhile they just may be the answer to what to do with all of the less expensive Carnival glass.

Continued -

Mr. Thomas makes the statement that if you can't offer the best of glass at a convention auction, why have a convention. If a collector is attending a convention only for the auction, they are missing what I consider the prime reasons for a convention. While all of us enjoy picking up a special piece of glass at the convention, it is the educational opportunities and the social experiences that make a convention such a special activity. I think you would find that many collectors would attend the conventions even without the accompanying auction.

Let us not be in such a hurry to eliminate the "average" glassware and the "average" collectors. I think there is room enough for all of us.

Heart of America Carnival Glass President Bob Grissom and Vice President Daryl Strohm displayed a variety of carnival glass the month of September at the Raytown Historical Society, 63 Street and Raytown Road, Raytown, Missouri. The Westmoreland Glass Club also had a nice selection of glass with over one hundred pieces of glass. One of the helpful volunteers said the response was overwhelming.

EDUCATIONAL TUMBLER SERIES

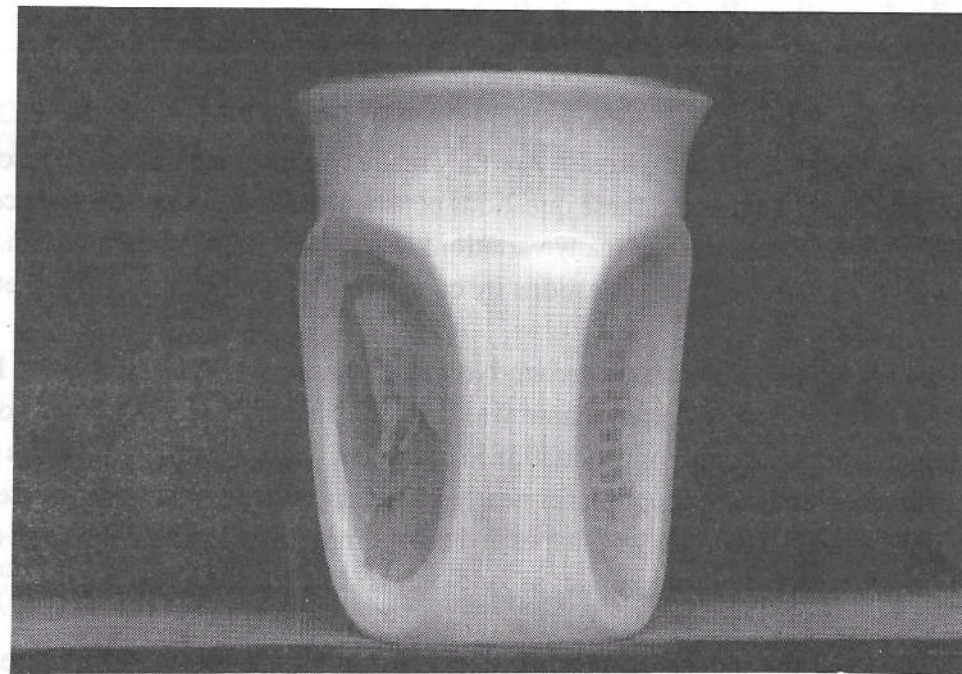

By John & Lucile Britt

SHRINERS PORTRAIT TUMBLER

The featured Shriners tumbler is rather unique in that it is tri-cornered. In other words it has three sides. Each side features an elongated depressed area that resembles a picture frame. One of these contains a portrait, most likely their top official at that time. Another frame contains the words Syria Temple and a list of names of the Syria Temple officials. The third side contains a printed date June 26 to 28, 1917 and the city of Minneapolis, Minn.. This was most likely the date and place of the Shriners convention for 1917. No doubt, it made a very nice souvenir. We are showing two different views of the Shriners portrait tumbler.

The tumbler is made of milk glass and the iridescence is very good. It measures 3 3/8" high with a top opening of 2 5/8". The base is 1 3/4" in diameter and the outer edge of the bottom has been factory ground and polished. The top of the tumbler contains a narrow gold band which adds to its attractiveness.

We consider this tumbler as rather hard to find. The first one of these that we knew about was found by Conley's of Silver Spring, Maryland. That example was purchased by Bill and Sharon Mizell, also of Silver Spring. Sharon stated that she knows of only 3 examples. The one we have is the only one that we have actually seen. It was purchased from Jack Burk at an Overland Park, Kansas antique show. We also purchased the Shriners Donkey tumbler at the same time. The photos were sent to us by the Conleys.

We were somewhat surprised to learn that this tumbler was made by Westmoreland. This 1917 example, along with a number of other Shriner tumblers with different dates are illustrated on page 280 in the recently published Westmoreland book "Westmoreland Glass" by Charles Wilson. This is a very nice book and contains a lot of information on Westmoreland glass.

This article on the Shriners Portrait tumbler is #225 in our Educational Tumbler Series. Next month we will feature the Sword and Circle juice tumbler.

THE IMPERIAL PROCLAMATIONS

By Carl O. Burns

“A ROSE IS A ROSE”

Is it Open Rose? Is it Lustre Rose? Are they really two different patterns? If so, how do I tell the difference? I am asked these questions constantly. It can indeed be quite confusing, especially when you consider the many variations that can be found in each design. For this article, we'll try to answer these questions by concentrating on the Open Rose pieces.

Are they really two different patterns? No! Both were part of the same line: Imperial's #489. The original factory pattern name was “American Beauty Rose.” It was one of the earlier Imperial lines, created for production in iridescent ware, about 1910. It was to remain in near constant Carnival production for nearly 20 years, with modifications and new shapes added along the way. The variety of shapes and colors known indicate that it was an extremely popular design with the buying public, second only to Imperial's Grape.

How do I tell the difference between Open Rose and Lustre Rose? It's really quite simple. Open Rose is the collar-based bowl, plate, and Rosebowl version of the design. All of the other shapes are called Lustre Rose.

Photo #1 shows an Amber Open Rose 9" Plate. There are two large, fully open roses and 4 rosebuds, with 3 groupings of leaves. The heavily stippled background ends in a scalloped effect about ¼" from the edge. This ¼" edge, on this version, is unpatterned. This plate may also be found with a ribbed or pleated effect around this edge area.

Photo #2 shows the exterior surface of an identical ruffled bowl, in Amber. The large panels of roses are separated by a smaller panel, each containing 2 small, petaled flowers, with 2 leaves. A band of 6 ribs encircles the bowl just above the collar base. The interior area of the collar base is plain.

Photo #3 shows the interior of a rare Lavender Open Rose 8" Ruffled Bowl. This version shows the ribbed or pleated edge design. Most of the rest of the interior design is pretty much the same. But, this version of Open Rose shows a couple of major differences on the exterior surface, as shown in Photo #4. The most obvious of these is the large impressed rose in the center of the collar base area. The other major difference is that the bands of 6 ribs encircling the collar base is missing. Otherwise, the rest of the exterior design is the same as that found on the plate and bowl shown in the first two photos. I suspect that the lack of the band of 6 ribs is simply the result of mold re-tooling. The large impressed rose on the underside of the collar base is the result of a different base plate used in the molding.

Photo #5 shows the interior surface of an amber round 9" Master Berry Bowl, a shape that we have traditionally referred to as Lustre Rose. However, it really qualifies as Open Rose! The exterior design is identical to that found on the bowl and plate shown in the first two photos. The interior surface does show some differences, however. There are 2 large, fully Open Roses, but there are 5 rosebuds instead of 4. Also, there are differences in the positioning of the leaves. The stems of the 3 large leaves beneath the roses leave the main stems at different junction points than on the other versions, and there are differences in the positioning and shape of the other leaves as well.

Believe it or not, we are not yet finished. There IS yet another versions of the bowl! Very large 9" to 10½" bowls, which may be round or ruffled also exist. The exterior design on this version is the same as that found on the plate and bowl shown in the first two photos. However, the interior pattern has 3 fully Open Roses, 7 rosebuds, and the shapes and positioning of the leaves is entirely different! Good color photos and factory catalog drawings of this version can be found in Volume #1 of the Imperial Glass Encyclopedia by the National Imperial Glass Collectors' Society.

The Marigold Open Rose Rosebowl, shown in Photo #6, shows that same design elements as the plate and bowl in the first two photos. I have yet to see a Rosebowl that contained any of the elements described in any of the other versions, but they could well exist.

From all of this we can reach some conclusions about the production of “American Beauty Rose,” as far as the version we call “Open Rose” is concerned. At LEAST 3 different interior mold plates must have been used. Two different base plates for the collar base area were used. Two different “edge rings” were used in the molding process, and at least one mold re-tooling of the exterior mold plate likely occurred. With nearly a 20 year production run, is it any wonder? One thing is for certain. We certainly have a lot of different variations on an “American Beauty” to hunt for and enjoy! Until next time, be careful of the thorns when you pick them!

OCTOBER, 1996 REGULAR HOACGA MONTHLY MEETING
NOTE NEW MEETING PLACE

The next regular meeting of the Heart of America Carnival Glass Association will be on Sunday, October 27, 1996 at 2:00 P.M. at the home of Cliff and Jo Ann Ball in Olathe. The address is 572 W. Park St., Olathe, KS 66061. The phone is 1-913-782-0415. For directions, contact the Balls or any other board member. We will discuss carnival glass by Westmoreland, Sowerby, Cambridge or unknown makers. We hope to have a new permanent place for our monthly meetings but negotiations are still underway.

The September 22 meeting was at Bob and Imogene Grissom's home and was attended by 13 members. Twenty-five pieces of Imperial Glass were discussed. Bob and Don LaCock came in from Topeka for the meeting. Pam Rothwell won the door prize, a marigold coin spot compote by Dugan. We all had an enjoyable afternoon.

FROM MY CORNER

By Bob Grissom

When I first attended the monthly carnival glass meetings here in Kansas City, most of the meeting time was utilized in identifying and discussing carnival glass patterns. Most of the glass brought to the meetings was to show the various patterns. This information was very important at that time. With this knowledge you were more able to communicate with other members about the glass. The various colors, sizes, shapes, and rarities were not the main concerns. The only educational books available, at that time, were the Hartung and Presnick books. The meetings were very educational and were attended by everyone in the area that had any interest in carnival glass. You could not wait until the meeting next month to learn about some other patterns. We were fortunate to have had some experienced collectors that were willing to share their glass and knowledge with us newer collectors.

Many things about carnival collecting have changed today. We now have more collectors with carnival experience to share their knowledge about the various aspects of the glass. Several organizations have conventions where members can attend educational programs, see room displays of collector's glass, and are able to discuss glass with others. Many reference books have been published.

All of these many changes are good, and it increases the knowledge of all carnival collectors. But, it still does not change the necessity of the organizational meetings. We all benefit from the opportunity to see the glass and to be able to have our questions answered. The club meetings are still as necessary for the newer collector today as they were twenty-five years ago. I read in many of the club bulletins that they are urging members to become more active in the meetings. The more members that attend the meetings the more information will be exchanged.

The Carnival Glass collecting hobby has not attained the place that it holds today without a lot of help from many people. We all have an investment in our collection. Our investment should cause us to spend some time protecting it - to assure that it does not decrease in value. It is important for each of us to encourage new members, to help them in any way that we can, by attending the organizational meetings and becoming involved with the club's activities.

THE OBLIGATION OF KEEPING THE CARNIVAL GLASS HOBBY GROWING AND HEALTHY BELONGS TO ALL OF US, NOT TO JUST A FEW. WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO THE VALUE OF YOUR COLLECTION IF IT WAS DEPENDENT ON THE EFFORT THAT YOU PUT FORTH? IF THE ORGANIZATIONS CEASE TO EXIST, OUR COLLECTIONS WOULD DECREASE IN VALUE CONSIDERABLY.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear HOACGA,

Recently at a small local house auction a couple of blocks from our home (if this auction hadn't been near our home we wouldn't have gone to it) we had the good fortune to acquire a marigold ruffled top perfection water pitcher in perfect condition. We thought your readers would be interested to know that there are still good pieces out there waiting to be picked up by collectors - so don't give up hope, it can happen.

Lawrence Ashley, Norton, OH

Dear HOACGA,

My Good Luck plate arrived safely a couple days ago. I love it! It's Beautiful!! I'll treasure it as a keepsake of 20 years - HOACGA 1973 - 1993. Another treasure I have the ICGA 20th - Indianapolis - G Rose Bowl from the Hunter Collection a couple months ago. Always anxiously await the monthly bulletin. Thanks to all who work so hard and bring so much pleasure for the rest of us. Many Thanks!!

Doris Gerber, Garrett, IN

Dear HOACGA,

Please find enclosed our 25 dollars for our HOACGA bulletin renewal. Gloria's been in and out of the hospital recently because of a bad blood clot that turned into Phlebitis & Cellularitis and the bulletin has really kept her company by reading articles and questions and answers from our carnival glass friends. Looking forward to seeing you all at the next HOACGA convention; especially at the new hotel!! It's location alone is very convenient for us out of towners who fly in!

Russ Herbruck & Gloria Lopez, Willoughby, OH

Editor's Note: Hi Gloria. Hope you're better by now.

Dear HOACGA,

I would like to inform you of the passing of my husband G. Vail Nevius on July 9, 1996 after a bout with cancer for 3 years.

Helen Nevius, Kampsville, IL

Editor's Note: HOACGA extends our sympathy to you and your family.

SPECIAL SALE

During our inventory of HOACGA souvenirs and printed matter, we discovered a box of 24 Table Favor Votive lights from the 1996 convention. We had thought that all of these were gone at the time of the convention. They are available on a first-come, first-served basis to those who want them. They are $21.00 each including postage. They are listed by Fenton as blue opal. Please let me know and I will fill orders as received or notify you when these are gone.

Ed Kramer, Secretary HOACGA
