IMPERIAL'S HOBSTAR AND ARCHES

By Alan & Lorraine Pickup

This bowl, like many geometric patterns, had us stumped when we found it. We knew that it wasn't Fashion, Diamond Ring, Octagon, Diamond Lace, Royalty, or Blaze to name just a few, but what was it? We were only carrying Dave Doty's handy reference book with us on this day. We searched the book to no avail.

Well the only thing to do was to buy the bowl, take it home and hit the books. We had no trouble finding it in the Carl Burns and the Edwards/Carwile books after a little geometric skipping about. It has been reported that this pattern also occurs as a fruit bowl and base. And the base, that is a Hobstar and Arches, is used as a base for Imperial's Royalty and Long Hobstar punch bowls. We cannot confirm this. Marion Hartung's book 3 page 42 laments on the challenges of recognizing these "near cut" patterns. She wrote that the Hobstar and Arches "stand was also near cut but not an exact match for (the) pattern."

Not a great find, but a find nevertheless. Although described as readily available we cannot find any mention of Hobstar and Arches in the last 12 years of auction reports. We have learned the hard way that passing up carnival glass just because you don't recognize it at the moment is a big mistake. If it isn't ridiculously priced, but it, as it will save you the expense for the trip back. And anyway, it was just too pretty to leave behind.

This attractive eight ruffle exterior pattern bowl, with a marigold radium iridescence, measures 8½" in diameter. And is shown here viewed from the bottom, to make it easier to see the pattern. This is Imperial's No. 302 pattern, and was illustrated in the 1909 catalog.

The price guide range is $40 to $50. Naming those very similar geometric patterns must have been truly difficult. Just what is a Hobstar anyway?

MIKADO COMPOTES

By Gale Eichhorst

The pattern called Mikado was made by the Fenton Glass Company and was made in only one shape, the large compote to be used as a fruit bowl. According to information found in the "Butler Brothers Catalogs", reprinted by the San Diego and Southern California carnival glass clubs, the Mikado pattern was sold between February 1920 and July 1922. They were sold to dealers in an assortment with other shapes of glass.

Rose M. Presznick in her 1966 book, "Carnival and Iridescent Glass with Price Guide Book II" called the pattern "Cherries and Mums."

Marion T. Hartung in her "Fourth Book of Carnival Glass" named the pattern Mikado, and that is the name that has remained to this day. Here is a quote from page 57 of her book when describing this pattern: "Such a combination of chrysanthemums and Rising Sun could only suggest Japan of course. This beautifully designed and executed pattern reflects in every line and in excellent taste the popular vogue for things Oriental which prevailed early in our century."

Bill Edwards in his 1981 book, "Fenton Carnival Glass The Early Years," describes the interior Mikado pattern on page 78 as "This design consists of a center Medallion of stippled rays around which are three large Chrysanthemums and three oriental scroll devices."

In Glen & Stephen Thistlewoods 1998 book, "Carnival Glass The Magic and the Mystery," on page 80 they describe the interior Mikado pattern as "The central flower motif is simplified to a sunburst, but is surround by slightly more recognizable chrysanthemums that have detailed stamens and petals. Interspersed between the three large flower heads are three lozenge shapes festooned with Oriental looking spirals and curlicues."

The exterior pattern is called Fenton's Cherry. Cherry patterns were very popular in the early 1900's. Around the bowl, hanging from a vine that winds around the top of the bowl, are six groups of realistic looking cherries in a bunch of seven cherries. Each group of cherries is separated by two smaller and two larger leaves.

The stem consists of three columns of three sets of three cherries in an elongated circle. The pattern between the columns of cherries is like overlapping scales on a stippled background.

The Mikado compotes were made in a three part mold. All the ones I have seen are between 7" and 8" in height. They all have a 5" base. The width of the bowl ranges from 9½" to 10¼" depending on how flattened out they are. The edges may be ruffled (most common). All the ruffled Mikados I have seen have eight ruffles. The edges may be also smooth with small serrated points. In this edge treatment there are thirteen groupings of five points. The Mikado compote is also found with a rarer Ice Cream Shape (ICS) bowl. In the ICS compotes the bowl is shallower, only 2" in height with the same thirteen groupings of five points, but much deeper point groupings. The normal ruffled and round bowls are usually 3" in depth. The ICS compotes show off the fantastic Mikado interior pattern to its fullest beauty.

The colors I have seen the Mikado compotes in are Marigold (round, ruffled & ICS), Blue (round, ruffled, & ICS), Amethyst/Purple (round & ruffled), Green & the rare Emerald Green (ruffled), Powder (smokey) Blue (with marigold overlay) in ruffled. Rumors are that there is one in red and also in white, but those I have not seen. The round and ruffled compotes come with either a radium or satin finish. I have only seen the ICS compotes with the satin finish.

The Fenton Glass Company also made the Mikado pattern in other glass. In Margaret & Kenn Whitmyer's 1996 book, "Fenton Art Glass 1907-1939 Identification & Value Guide," they have pictured a Mikado compote in black glass on page 165, listed as being made in 1916. I have this one in my collection and it is black and shiny. Very hard to see the pattern on black glass but it is hard to come by. It has a round edge treatment.

Also in the Whitmyer's book on page 197 they have the Mikado pictured in Mandarin Red Slag in the round and ruffled shapes. Mine is in the ruffled edge. The slag effect makes it a stunning piece of glass. They also show a cake plate in Mandarin Red, but I have not seen it in that shape. Red was manufactured in 1934.

Also in the Whitmyer's book on page 219 they have both the round compote and the cake plate in Royal Blue pictured. They state date of production as 1935. I have the compote in ruffled in a deep blue. Again the pattern does not show up well in this color. I have not seen the cake plate in this color.

Finally in the Whitmyer's book on page 198 they state that the Mikado compote was also made in Milk Glass between 1933-34. I have never seen a Mikado in Milk Glass either.

All the Mikado's in my collection that are not iridized carnival glass are identical in shape, size, and pattern content to the carnival glass compotes. It must have been a popular, utilitarian mold that Fenton used for a long time.

Mikado Compotes are large one piece stemmed fruit bowls that would grace anyones collection with beauty and deserve to be represented in everyones collection.

Any comments or corrections would be greatly appreciated. You can email me at gikeeich@mctcnet.net or write me at Gale Eichhorst, PO Box 1183, Mankato, MN 56002

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear HOACGA,

Last month while attending a small Antique show at a high school in Madison, WI. We saw a 5 piece water set. (It) appeared to be hand painted, but (the) top was marigold flashed. It was very pretty. We passed by once & looked & then at the end of our looking, we went back asked to see it. They had it on a shelf very high up. The man took it down - we looked it over. It was (in) perfect condition. 4 Tumblers & Pitcher. He had it marked George Duncan & Son Criptal(?) We had never heard of them but we offered a price & he took it. So when we got home, I got (the) Carnival book (out and) looked for it (but) didn't find it. About 3 weeks later, I got out (the) Bill Edwards 1998 book and on page 41, I found the tumbler. Duncan had joined U.S. Glass as factory D and had iridized this set or tumbler. Bill showed on page 41. It's a beautiful set, (and I) took it to (the) Lincoln-Land Christmas dinner. No one there had ever seen it - including George Louescher. It is called Block - Band U.S. Glass. Thank you.

John L. Stafford, Sr., Dalton, WI

Dear HOACGA,

Enclosed is my check for renewal in HOACGA for another year. It's great to get the bulletin in the mail each month and I get such a kick out of reading about people's finds of rare and unusual pieces. Keep up the good work.

Greg Dilian, Long Beach, NY

Dear HOACGA,

Hi! Sorry I am late on this - time slips by when you have "fun in the courthouse"! Keep up the great newsletter and the great convention!! We are still having bundles of fun with this hobby as well as spending bundles!! But the friendships and knowledge is what this club is all about!

Dorothy Morgan, Texas

VASES --- FIFTH SECTION

By Bob Grissom

Four Sections of the Vase Section of the HOACGA Notebook have been completed. The fourth section ended the alphabetical listing through the "Tree Trunk" pattern. The fifth section will start with the "Triands" pattern and will then complete the alphabet through "Z". I presently have photographs of thirty eight (38) patterns within "Triands" through "Z" but I do not have a photograph of the "VINING TWIGS", "WAFFLE BLOCK", or "ZOOM" vases (if I had them at one time, they are now misplaced). If anyone has these vases I would appreciate you photographing them and sending me a copy for the fifth Vase section.

In the past few years, many Foreign vase patterns have been identified. As part of this fifth vase section, I will include a picture and information of these vases that have not previously been shown. I do not have knowledge of all of the foreign vases and need some help. Below is a listing of the patterns that I have already included in previous vase sections or for which I presently have a photograph. If you know of, or you have a vase that is not listed, please send a photograph of it, or let me know the location of the vase.

GREAT FINDS

By Vicki Gearhart

I think it would be fun to have a little section in the bulletin on "Great Finds".

Members could send in some great finds they made in their carnival glass journeys, either recent or from the past. Maybe it was not just the price but maybe the missing pieces to a hard to find set and the circumstances how they came upon it.

This could make for some interesting stories. Or maybe just a quick little note saying you purchased a nice piece for a certain price at a nearby mall. It doesn't have to be a long article - just whatever you are comfortable sending in. Or just a funny thing that might have happened at a Carnival event or auction. I doubt Jim Seeck will ever say the words "Short and Squatty" with a straight fact again. So give it a try and send in some fun things for all of us to read.

This has nothing to do with carnival but a funny little story: My daughter was quite young and had figured out where babies come from. She said "Having babies is gross, I am just going to close my eyes and count to 10. So there you have it ladies- if you are expecting a child, my daughter has the answer for quick, painless child birth - just close your eyes and count to 10.

SILENT AUCTION - CONVENTION 2000

CORRESPONDENCE

On a recent trip to Indiana, we stopped at several Antique Malls. You never know when you might find something unusual. Well, I bought what I called a Fruits & Flowers bowl. The same pattern as Three Fruits but has the small flowers extra. I can't seem to find any pictures or literature on this pattern. It is a little unusual. I bought a Fruits and Flowers eight sided ruffled green with marigold overlay bowl. It is ten inches wide, has all the fruits and flowers but has four large cherries instead of three. If someone knows or has this pattern, I would appreciate hear from them.
